

Partnerships Update

Document prepared by: Sylvia de Haan, CEOO

Purpose of paper: For information. To provide a status update on Cochrane's external partnerships for Q2 and Q3, 2018

Access: Open access

Cochrane's work with external partners is guided by the Cochrane Partnership Policy, and the Guidance for Partnership Development. A dedicated space on the community website has been developed to keep the Cochrane community informed about the key external partnerships that Cochrane is engaged in. Updates \(including those to Cochrane's Governing Board\) on external partnerships are also available on the community site.

The current document provides a status update on Cochrane's external partnerships for Q2 and 3, 2018. The annex provides a detailed overview per partner, also specifying the plans for the next two quarters. The main developments to note are:

- The Knowledge Translation Working Group on Strategic Partnerships developed a guidance document to support partnership development by Cochrane groups. The guidance document, case studies and related resources are available from the KT partnership pages on the community website. This resource will be expanded further, and webinars around partnership development are expected to be developed in 2019 as well.
- To maintain and continue Cochrane's official relation with WHO, a report of the activities from 2016 to date, as well as a plan of work for 2019-2021 have been submitted to WHO. The plan of work was informed by a series of meetings David Tovey and Sylvia de Haan held in April 2018 with the new leadership of WHO, as well as with Directors of various departments. The new plan of work responds to WHO's 13th Global Programme of Work. The plan of work is being reviewed by WHO, and we expect a decision re the continuation of Cochrane's status as NGO in official relation with WHO after the WHO Executive Board in January 2019.
- It has been agreed that the Global Evidence Summit (GES) will be organised as an ongoing quadrennial event, and the next Summit is planned for 2021.

A new task has been created on the get involved pages to encourage people to work on this. Successfully launched an improved project page that flags Cochrane Reviews on Wikipedia that need updating: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Wikipedia:WikiProject_Medicine/Cochrane_update This page searches Wikipedia on the 1st of each month for reviews that have been updated and flags them for the Wikipedia Medical Editing community to verify and update accordingly in Wikipedia. This page also automatically archives the updates that have been completed by volunteers once a month. Continued the support to Cochrane Groups asking for training and guidance on Wikipedia editing. Support was requested and provided to: Cochrane Nursing Care, Cochrane Rehabilitation, Cochrane Incontinence, Cochrane UK, Cochrane Skin, Cochrane Work,	A Special Session and a Workshop will be organised at the Edinburgh Colloquium. Discussions are ongoing with the Data Science Institute of the University of Virginia around a Capstone project. The project would develop an article recommendation tool for Cochrane articles in Wikipedia, and would seek to match medical Wikipedia articles with suggestions of publication from Cochrane which match the subject matter content. This work is currently done manually, and automation would facilitate adding Cochrane evidence to Wikipedia.

2,3	Global Evidence Synthesis Initiative (GESI) www.gesiinitiative.com	GESI seeks to develop the production capacity and use of synthesized evidence in low- and middle-income countries.	Implementation phase	One of the main activities of GESI is the training they provide for their network members. Cochrane Training is supporting the delivery of some of the online training (webinars) provided. GESI also organised several workshops at GES. Regular meetings with the GESI governance group continued.	Cochrane's support to GESI formally ends in June 2019. In the coming months a decision needs to be taken re continuing our investment in GESI. This will depend on: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>the progress the GESI Secretariat made and the expected impact the initiative could have in the longer term;</li> <li>the commitments of the other key funding partners (Alliance for Health Policy and Systems Research; 3IE; and the American Institutes for Research); and</li> <li>the prospects of receiving additional funding beyond 2019 from other funders.</li> </ul>
